

Can a Social Security Lawyer Help If You Are Confused About Seeking Employment, While on SSI?

Q: If you become employed part time, do Supplemental Security Income payments continue?

A: Supplemental Security Income benefits are based on financial need. If you become employed again, your earnings may reduce or discontinue your SSI benefits. If your earnings are equal to or exceed the income threshold set by Social Security, your SSI payments may end. That amount for 2008, for example, was $940 per month before taxes. Make sure you keep Social Security informed of all changes in your work income. You will have to pay back any over payments from Social Security. It is important to note, however, that Social Security wants to help you return to work. Purposefully keeping your hours low for the sole purpose of continuing SSI benefits can be considered fraudulent. If you have any reservations about returning to work because of loss of SSI benefits, you may wish to contact a social security lawyer.

Q: Should you be concerned if Social Security prefers to communicate with your social security lawyer instead of you?

A: The disability case manager will probably wish to deal with your social security lawyer. Do not be worried. The social security lawyer you hired is your advocate and works only on your behalf. If Social Security conducts transactions simultaneously with your social security lawyer and you, it can get confusing. Your lawyer is an extension of you. You should be in frequent contact with your social security lawyer regarding your case. That is why you hired representation.

Q: Are veterans who receive compensation through the VA also eligible for disability insurance through Social Security?

A: Yes, a veteran can receive disability benefits through both the VA and Social Security. If a veteran was injured on or after October 2001, he can have his claim go through an accelerated review process with Social Security. The expedited process is supposed to occur automatically, but it is a good idea to remind the representative handling your claim or to mention it on your initial application. If you have a social security lawyer, have him handle it for you.
