

Submit Your Blog

Now you can create your own blog in minutes. A blog can be created for free on blogging websites, or you can buy a domain to host it. The real work starts after the creation of blog; you need to submit it on search engines and blog directories.

Submitting your blog is just like submitting your website, however, there are various differences which we would look here and know how to index the blog more quickly?. The three biggest search engines are Google, Yahoo and MSN; we will look the ways how to submit your blog on these search engines.

Google crawler likes sitemap to index pages, so your blog should have sitemap. Always check your sitemap time by time to ensure that Google is not encountering any errors in it. You only need to submit your blog once on Google; you dont need to submit again, but do not ignore your sitemap.

For instance, if you host your blog on Wordpress, it is good to install Wordpress sitemap plugin which is a good tool that automatically updates your sitemap and send notification to Google. If your blog hosting website does not offer you blogging software, you can find free tools for creating sitemaps on Google. Without sitemap, you can still submit your blog on Google Webmasters. Google gives importance to blog directories to pull results, so submit your blog on these directories first, and do not forget to ping your blog when you update it. There are many websites which offer you this service, but Feed Shot is the most powerful website which submits your blog on main blog directories.

Yahoo works differently than Google. It asks you to submit your site feed instead of sitemap. It is wise to add your blog feed on your My Yahoo page, so that your blog can be indexed quickly to Yahoos version of blog search.

Now lets talk about MSN which is the third biggest search engine after Google and Yahoo. MSN works differently; you can directly submit your blog on MSN, and for this you do not need an account. Submission of blog on MSN is a manual process in which you are required to enter the characters on the page for successful submission. One another easy way to submit on MSN is to submit your blog on Moreover news site, because many results which MSN shows are dragged from Moreover.

After you successfully submit your blog on Google, Yahoo, and MSN search engines, you should ping your blog every time you update it. Before pinging your blog, you should make sure if you have also presented your blog on all of the directories listed.

These are some of the tips to submit your blog on search engines. After that, promote it by writing new posts and submit them in directories accordingly. This way you can build links and pull traffic towards your blog.
